

General questions of the theory of special education of children with severe speech disorders

Khabarova Svetlana

Questions

1. Tasks of special education of children with severe speech disorders.
2. The conceptual and categorical apparatus of special education of children with severe speech disorders.
3. The inner workings of the special education of children with severe speech disorders in relation to other sciences.

Special education of children with severe speech disorders

Special education industry that develops theoretical and methodological foundations for teaching and upbringing of children with severe speech impediments.

Special education of children with severe speech disorders

The main challenge of special education of children with severe speech disorders is the search for ways to resolve the conflict between the need for adults to pass on social and cultural experience to a child with severe speech impairment and the child's real ability to accept it.

The tasks of special education of children with severe speech disorders

- Psychological and pedagogical study of children with severe speech disorders.
- The study of the objective consistent patterns of education and upbringing children with severe speech disorders.
- Development of the scientific foundations of instructions, principles, methods and means of teaching and raising children with severe speech disorders.
- Improving the system of oral and written speech development.
- Strengthening cooperation of preschool institutions, schools, families in the process of education and upbringing of children with severe speech disorders.

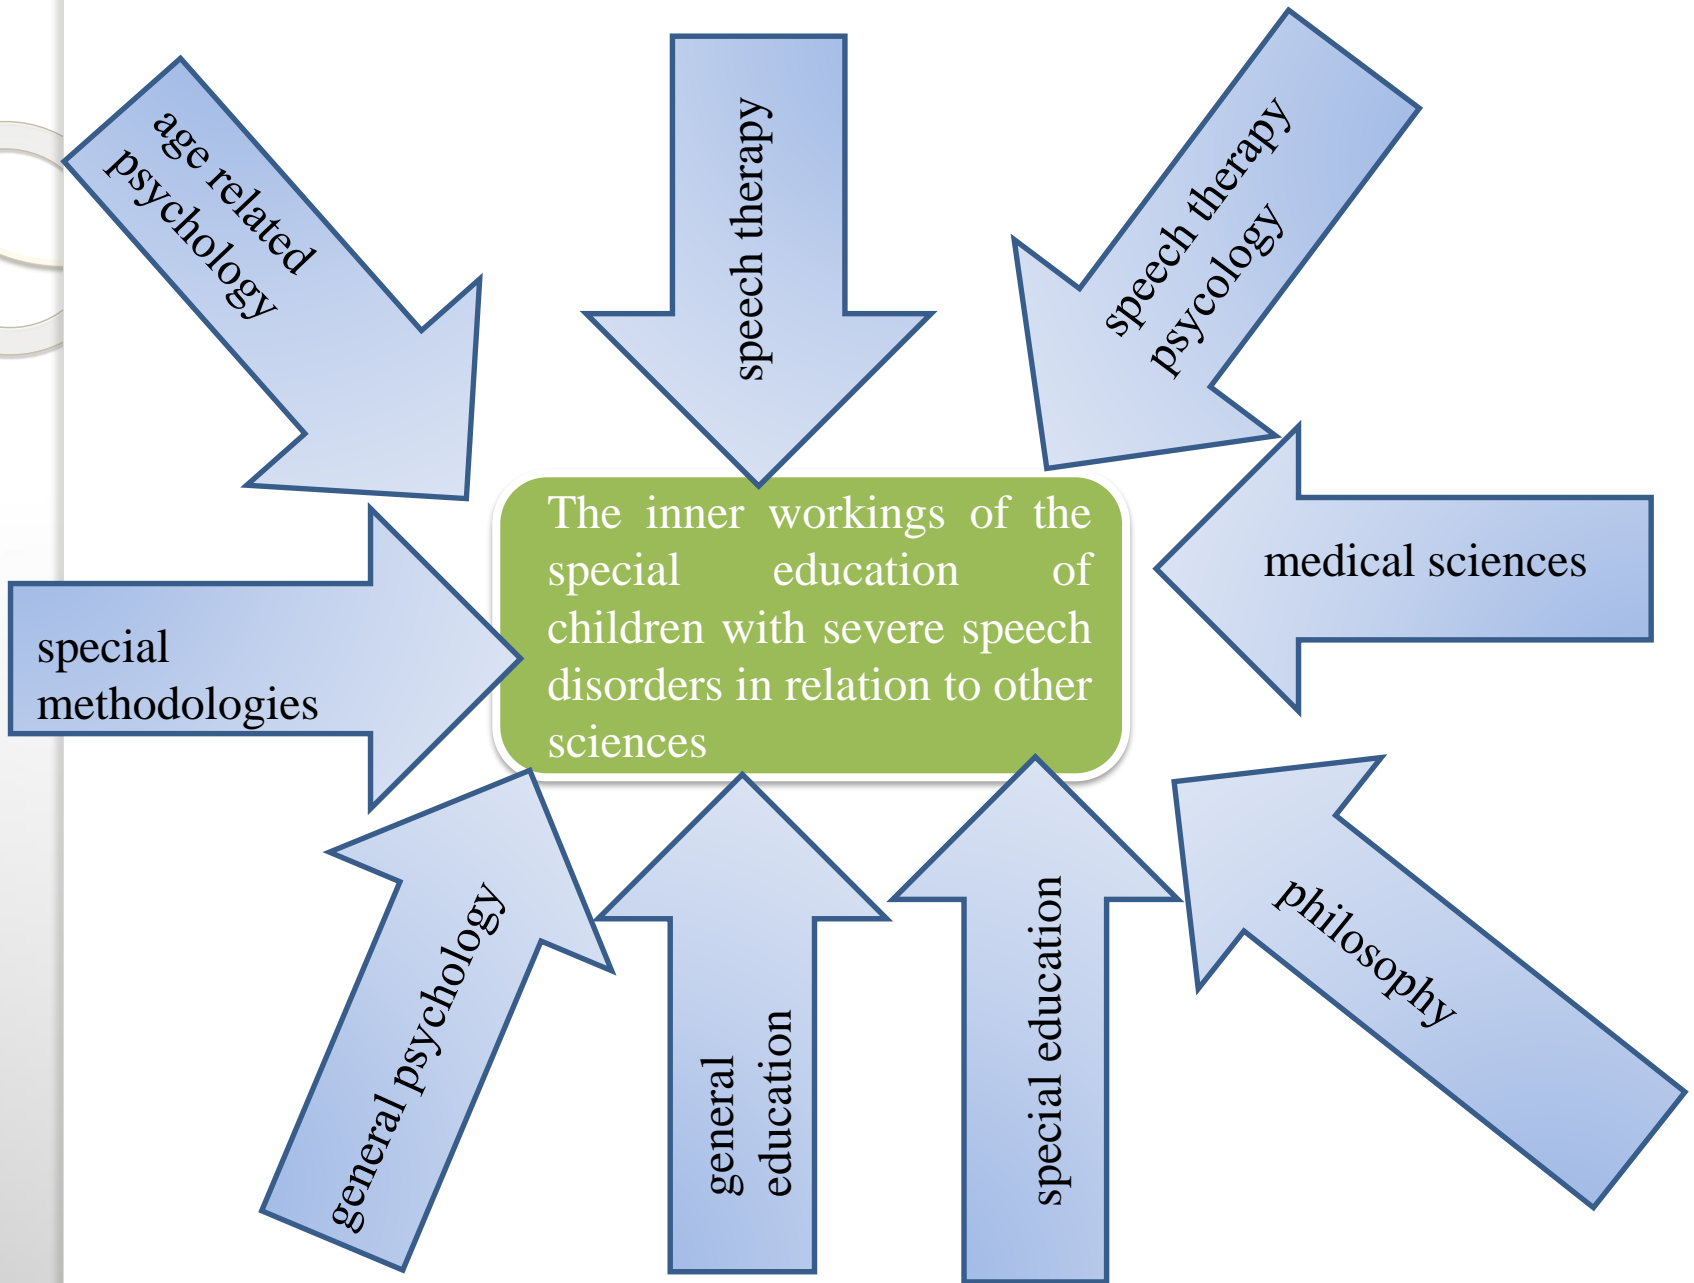

Conceptual and categorical apparatus of special education of children with severe speech disorders

Since special education of children with severe speech disorders is one of the branches of general educational knowledge, then, along with its own specific terminology, it uses general educational categories and concepts.

The inner workings of the special education of children with severe speech disorders in relation to other sciences

- Psychological and educational sciences.
- Medical sciences.
- Philosophical sciences.

General questions of the theory of special education of children with severe speech disorders

Khabarova Svetlana