

Communication passport

Yurevich Katerina
senior lecturer of the Department of Correction and Development Technologies, Institute of Inclusive
Education

History of the method creation

Sally Millar

"Personal passport of Communication"

1991

Who is involved in the creation of a communication passport?

- an interdisciplinary team of specialists
- the user's family
- the user himself

The main features and functions of the communicative passport:

- Contains only key information.
- Makes information accessible to a wide variety of readers.
- Clarifies exactly how a person communicates.

The main features and functions of the communicative passport:

- It should be visually appealing, easy to read.
- Extremely individual. It contains information not about the diagnosis, but about a person with his unique and easily recognizable features.
- The text is written in the first person.

The main features and functions of the communicative passport:

- They provide information in a positive manner and emphasize the strengths and capabilities of both the person and the reader.
- It is the property of the person and his family, not specialists. Only the person himself and/or his family members make decisions regarding the passport.

The main features and functions of the communicative passport:

- Процесс создания паспорта может стать обучением по более компетентному наблюдению за поведением.
- Требуется длительных и подробных дискуссий с семьями и сотрудниками, что помогает лучше понять человека с ОПФР и друг друга.

What can be included in the communication passport?

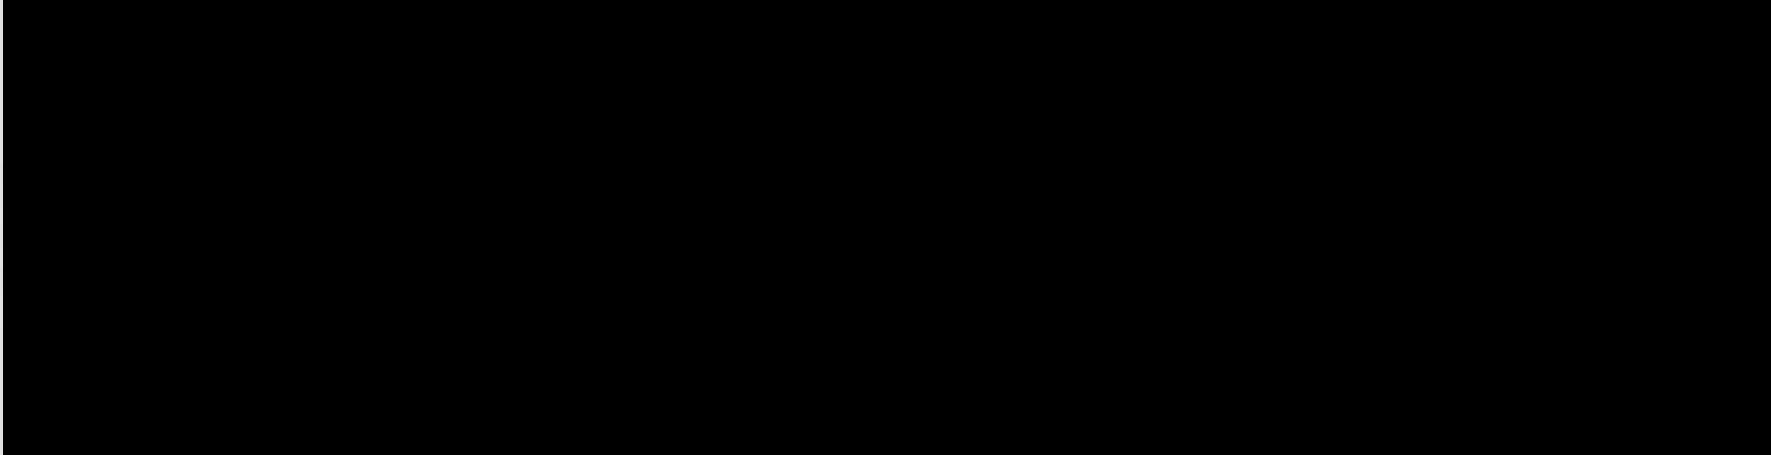

Personal data, including name, address, birthday.

Important information about family and friends.

How to address a person so that he understands.

How a person can tell about something.

1. What he does when he is happy/sad (for example, smiling).
-

How a person can tell about something.

What a person likes/ what I don't like.

Places where a person has been.

What a person needs help and support in

Other important things.

